

Central Florida Orff Chapter invites you to join us for our first workshop of the 2009-2010 series featuring

James T. Mader • Energizing Your Elementary Music Classroom

Activities in this workshop will foster learning and life skills in your music students. These skills will be developed through the academic study of African, Caribbean and Latin Drum and Xylophone Ensembles. Authentic world music practices, including improvisational techniques, will be explored. James will present music activities appropriate for elementary through middle school. These same techniques have been proven successful with all students, including those who are at-risk.

With a certificate in Percussion Performance from Berklee College of Music, James Mader uses his passion for drumming to energize the music classroom. His classes develop students' math, reading, science, language arts and social studies skills through the academic study of music. As the music director of the Percussive Techniques and Exploration Classes at Parkway Middle School of the Arts in Broward County he uses an innovative cross-cultural curriculum to raise students' academic and life skills through music. A pilot teacher for Will Schmid's WORLD MUSIC DRUMMING curriculum, he provides clinics throughout the US. James is a composer of K-12 music and has studied with Sowah Mensah, musician, composer and Ghanaian Master Drummer.
