

SPANGLES & BRUISES

"Someone goofed" is the cry of the basketball players as they pick themselves up off the floor. Stronger words than these will echo through the gym as the season progresses with more skinned shins and floor burns, until each player has his own collection of wounds.

The cause of the many slips on the gym floor is easily explained. The cure is a different story.

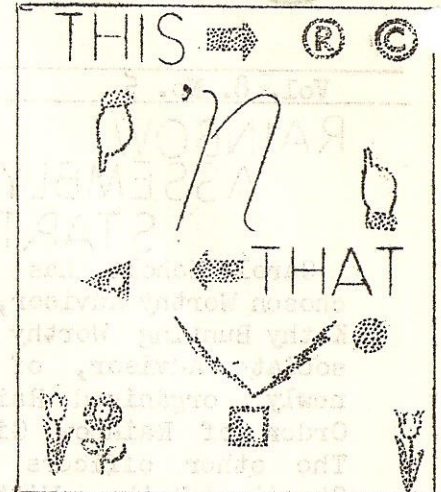

Several dances have been held in the gym this year, and quantities of spangles were scattered over the floor to make for easier dancing. But have any of the organizations bothered to clean this up? Definately not, they conveniently left it for someone else to do. Who this someone is, we don't know. We are wondering, though, and so are the basketball players.

DANCE-RULES!

I'm sure when Mr. Greene made the new dance rules he was thinking of stopping drinking and rowdiness. But, students still bring in guests that have been drinking. Also, what about the alumni that never cause any trouble that go with girls from out of town. Also, the kids from other schools whom we play like to come to our dances, and we are allowed to go to their's.

I believe Mr. Greene should calmly look these rules over, as I believe they were made in anger; and come up with a compromise that isn't so one sided.

Sadie Hawkins' week was the usual success that it has been the last few years. This year the seniors added a new twist with Blue Monday, (Did you ever realize there were so many shades of blue!) and Beatnik Day.

Some were less beatnik and more dogpatch style Verland Cannon, Charlie Erdman, Larry Stennick, Kathy Bunting, Becky Truett, Les Tipton, and Bev Burnham could have moved to Greenwich Village with no trouble, though.

Outstanding crazy hats were worn by Bob Floyd, Carol Walker, Sharon Cowles, and Paula Gaston.

The auditorium is one of the busiest rooms in the building with play practice, choir practice and band practice.

A hint to the girls: this is a good time of the year to start picking up little gifts for Pixie Sister Week. Merchandise isn't as picked over now as it will be later on.

How about coming to the dance tonight? The song queens are one organization that are in desperate need of money.
