"In Norway the boys don't drive cars and the popular U.S. phonograph records are behind time," reported Judy Gaston from the letters she has received from the Titlands. Mr. Titland speaks Norwegian and handles the families' translating problems. Among their travels, the Titlands have found very few English speaking people.

Marie has been sending many postcards to a few Rainier friends. She reports they are meeting many relatives and they have also met quite a few teenagers. Marie also reports the scenery is beautiful. They have taken trips to the fjords and to the mountains. They have also visited many outside markets where you can buy almost anything. They have been attending a Norwegian Stavis Church.
