

Joy of Vocab #3

Monograph- learned treatise on a particular subject; scholarly article

Monologue- lengthy talk by one person

Monorail- railway whose cars are supported on a single rail

Monosyllabic- having only one syllable

Monotonous- tiresome because of lack of variety

Multifaceted- having many facets or aspects

Multilateral- having many sides; participated in by more than two participants

Multimedia- involving the use of two or more media, such as slides, films, and tape recordings, flashing colored lights, etc.

Multinational- having subsidiaries or operations in several countries

Polygamist- person married to two or more mates at the same time

Polyglot- person who speaks or writes several languages

Polymath- person of great and diversified learning

Polytechnic- proving instruction in many technical arts and applied sciences

Polytheistic- believing in more than one god

Unanimous- being of one and the same opinion; showing complete agreement

Unicameral- consisting of or having one legislative chamber

Uniform- always the same; not varying in form, degree, or manner

Unilateral- involving or affecting one side only; one-sided

Unique- being the only one of its kind; highly unusual

Unisex- not distinguishable as male or female; designed for both sexes