

The story of Gibbor, father of the Nephilim

Lamech knew his wife Zillah, and she bore a daughter, and called her name Naamah. When the daughters of men bore children to the sons of God, Naamah conceived and bore a son, and she called his name Gibbor. Gibbor was of great stature, and was a great hunter in the land of Nod.

And it came to pass that the LORD sent rain to blot out man and beast and creeping things and birds of the air. As the waters filled the face of the earth, Gibbor wrestled the sea monster Leviathan and overcame it. Gibbor rode on the back of the monster until the waters subsided from the high places.

When the sons of Noah went forth from the ark, Gibbor could find no respite among them. For many years he wandered, until he camped with the sons of Canaan. He took as his wife a daughter of Canaan, and became the father of the Anakim, the Rephaim, the Zuzim, and the Emim.
