

011120 Appetizer

This is just a quick email to wet your appetite for my pictures of Norway once I get them developed. The attached images are from Bergen and Flån, Norway. All photos are courtesy of Micah Allen.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, for all of you in the US whether physically or in spirit for all of you who are living abroad. The original plans with Isabelle didn't work out, so we have moved the site of our Thanksgiving dinner to my friend Micah's kollegium (dorm). The dinner is being hosted by Micah, Leslie and myself and will feature a half-dozen chickens (turkey is not to be found). We have invited 20 people from all over to join us, so it should be a lot of fun. The only drawback is that there were conflicts with our class schedules, so we will be celebrating on Friday. Of course, we have a web site for the event at:

www.geocities.com/thanksgiving\_in\_denmark

So, while most of you are waking up with thoughts of turkey, I will be in my wind turbine class. My project mates and those that I hang out with in the class are Micah, Santiago (Argentina), Leslie, Beatriz (Spain), Hagen (Germany) and Naurius (Lithuania). The class is a lot of fun because the teacher brings coffee and each week, a different person from our group brings in vienerbrød to eat during our phenomenally long coffee breaks. (We have taken the name vienerbrød which is a specific pastry and now use it for any pastry that has come fresh from the bakery and is smothered with frosting and cinnamon. Mmmm.)

Have a great holiday!

Jeff
