

Video Podcasts for Your classroom

What do I need?

- a computer
- Internet access (cable/DSL or something fast is definitely a plus!)
- iTunes Software

(Version 7 is available free at www.apple.com/itunes/download/)

What don't I need?

- an iPod – Believe it or not, you don't need an iPod to watch a podcast. You can watch it on your computer. Or you can connect your computer to a data projector.

Okay, so what do I have to do?

Launch iTunes and go to the music store. Search for...

"Ecogeeks"		Science video podcasts that explain science topics in a fun and exciting way. Hosts and filmmakers are trained biologists. For more info about the episodes visit their site: www.thewildclassroom.com/home/nav/podastingscience.html
"Electronic Field Trips"		A series of 4 – 8 minute Webisodes from the Ball State University Electronic Field Trip Program. The current list includes videos from Field Trips to Hawaii (Volcanos, rainforests, etc.) and Historic Philadelphia (Independence Hall, Revolutionary War).
"isallaboutmath"		Covers a big range of topics in mathematics. Good for upper elementary & middle school. Topics include: triangular numbers, summations, mathematical induction.
See note		A series of 30 second to 1 minute video clips about various topics including "What happens when you drop a hammer and a feather on the moon?" and "What time is it in space?"  NOTE: This podcast is not listed in the iTunes directory. To add it you'll need to go to the Advanced menu and click " Subscribe to Podcast ". Type the following URL in the box and click Add : http://feeds.feedburner.com/brainbites/nasa

Find the podcast you want and click GET EPISODE to download that episode.

If you click SUBSCRIBE, iTunes will automatically check for new episodes. You can even set them to download automatically.

New to iTunes?

To see your podcasts, click on Podcasts

When you double click on a video it will start playing here. Click on the small video to make it bigger.

Indicates this is a video podcast

This podcast has not been downloaded yet. Click "Get" to get it.

Set iTunes to automatically check for new podcasts, by clicking "Subscribe"

Still not big enough?

Click here to go "Full Screen"