Philippa Gerry from Minehead wrote to us recently:

“For years I’ve had to be a hermit, avoiding—where possible—any electropollution: TVs, digital radio, videos, faxes, computer, microwave ovens, radar (boats, trains, church hearing loops etc.), people’s cars with electronic gadgets; the electric wiring round my bed disconnected; a fear, amounting to phobia, of being near mobile phones.

The invisible electronic “smog” we all live in gets thicker by the year. Now there are mobile phone masts sprouting, and the police Tetra masts all over Somerset, planned for the whole country. Very big energy fields. Lucky me: someone more afflicted than I, and knowledgeable, warned me. I borrowed books. Scary. You can’t see or feel or hear this disruptive manmade energy, only know something is going wrong. Mounting problems, few solutions—magnets, screening. For the estimated three million (and rising) people in this country affected like me, there is good news at the Centre for Implosion Research. Since putting on one (and sometimes two) of their PERSONAL HARMONISERS on 12.1.05, I’ve been able to go almost anywhere without the previous symptoms, I’m not affected at all by e.g. the builder’s mobile, the bank’s computer, the radiation (I measured it with an Acousticom from ‘The Healthy House’) from the upstairs flat’s portable phone base station. I can listen to digital radio with a small harmoniser on it. I could get a TV, go on a bus, go to the theatre, again. Energy is up, walking 6 miles instead of only two, aged 73 with a bad foot. There are harmonisers on me, on the walls where the radiation comes down, on the windows where radiation comes in (we’re not far as the crow flies from Hinckley Point, a nuclear power station), and there is a Vortex Energiser on my cold water supply. This “wipes” the water’s memory of anything that has gone into it, e.g. agrochemicals, peoples’ drugs. In London, we are told that water has been recycled at least 25 times. As all my water for cooking and eating is energised, it can only be good; cut flowers seem to last twice as long in it, and maybe I shall, too. A friend has put a pet-size harmoniser on the collar of her amiable old lethargic collie, which is now a frisky dog again, greeting the postman energetically; should we get him one, too? Animals are as much affected by radiation as people.”
