Retake test

Personality Match

Like Osama Bin Laden, you are mild-mannered, soft-spoken, and courteous in dealing with people, but you believe so strongly in your own ideas that you can become downright fanatical at times. It is not that you want to push your ideas through at the expense of others. Your conviction is charismatic and so you have the power to inspire others to pursue your goals. Use it wisely!

Words of Warning

Points to consider for people with your personality - have you ever:

- Been so obsessed with reciprocity in all your relations that your sense of fairness and justice got in the way of a working relationship with someone, causing you to make enemies where there need not be any?
- Invested so much of your powers of judgment in a given ideology or system that you followed it blindly, even when it led to making senseless decisions?
- Led others to believe that they had a very special and sincere friend in you and then neglected to follow up on the commitments you had implied?
- Accepted an outstretched hand that was offered in the spirit of compromise, knowing full well that you would never be satisfied with the middle ground?
- Applied your own personal morality to the affairs of friends and loved ones, as if it were the only conceivable code of ethics?

- Delved so deeply into singular aspects of a problem that interested you that you neglected to form an overall, more pragmatic picture of the question under scrutiny?

Scientific Research

According to studies from Cambridge University (UK) and Texas AM University (US), your scores indicate that you are:

- More deliberate and thorough in your actions than the average person.
- Someone who is more reserved in social situations than the average person.
- Someone who has an easier time concentrating for long periods of time than the average person.
- Someone who likes to take more time to size people up and get to know them before you open up than the average person.
- More planful, organized, and goal-oriented than the average person.
- Likely to have had a higher grade point average in school than the average person.
- Less likely than the average person to ever have cheated on your homework, exams, or a loved one.
- More likely than the average person to leave an orderly room when you go to work in the morning.

Historical Background

Osama bin Laden (1957-2011) was the founder of al-Qaeda, the international Islamic terrorist group that was responsible for the bombings of United States embassies in Africa and the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Born into a billionaire Saudi family, bin Laden funded the Mujahideen in the 1980s by funneling money, arms, and Arab combatants to Afghanistan to fight against the Soviet army. In 1988, he created al-Qaeda, and he was banished from Saudi Arabia to Sudan in 1992. After being forced from Sudan by pressure from the United States, he returned to Afghanistan, formed a base, and declared jihad against the United States.

Bin Laden was a major target of the United States' 'War on Terror,' and the Taliban government's refusal to extradite him was a principal reason for the US-led invasion of Afghanistan. In 2011, bin Laden was executed in Pakistan by US military forces at a residential compound.
