Best Selling Romance Novelist Joins the Essence of Motown Efforts

Detroit, Michigan – Celebrated romance author Elizabeth Atkins (White Chocolate, Twilight, Dark Secret) has agreed to lend her voice and literary talents to help make the very first Essence of Motown Writers Conference a success.

“We are very excited to have Elizabeth as the keynote speaker during the conference’s welcoming ceremonies.” states EMWC spokesperson Sylvia Hubbard. “Her presence will give hope to aspiring writers, assuring them that there are published authors from our community who are willing to reach back and support our efforts.”

In addition to Ms. Atkins the EMWC will unite such local writing talents as Detroit Writers Guild President Sharon M. Stanford, Joe Ferrari of LeAdfoot Press, and Dearborn Press & Guide columnist and author Sylvia McClain (Skipping Through Life: The Reason I Am).

“I’m hoping that this event will bring together a great group of writers who are willing to share their experiences.” comments LaDonna Tutt, EWMC assistant administrator. “It is important that the local literary community works to establish a bond to support each other in our literary endeavors. That is what we are working to promote by hosting the conference.”

The Essence of Motown Writers Conference is scheduled to take place Saturday, November 13th, 2004. Early registration is currently underway and will last until October 15th, 2004. The cost is just $10 per participant, with an additional $9 fee to attend the Writer’s Luncheon and “Low-Cost Marketing and Promotions” Discussion Forum which will be moderated by Pamela Perry, CEO of Ministry Marketing Solutions.

Writer’s wishing to RSVP to receive a registration form may do so by sending their full name, address, daytime phone number and E-mail address to essenceofmotown@yahoo.com or by visiting the EMWC Web site at www.geocities.com/essenceofmotown.
