AC/DC at Verizon Center

For the first time since 2001, those nasty lads from Australia will be bringing their heavy metal madness to D.C. Part of their "Black Ice World Tour," AC/DC is supporting the release of their new album of the same name that hit shelves in October. Angus and the boys will be rocking their fast, guitar-blazing hits like "Highway to Hell," "Back in Black," and "For Those About to Rock We Salute You." After a career that spans over 30 years, where they have destroyed every continent known to man, the madmen are bringing their dirty deeds back to the District, but at near a hundred bucks a ticket, it won't be done dirt cheap. Show starts at 8 p.m. $92.50. — Jason Walsh

The Dance Party, Ra Ra Rasputin, Greenland, The Nunchucks at Rock and Roll Hotel

Head out to the RnR for a healthy dose of the District. The Dance Party may be headlining, but the real treat is Ra Ra Rasputin, and we're not talking about the Boney M disco dirge (do yourself a favor and YouTube it if you Ra Ra Rasputin fiends haven't already). The quirky quartet — whose influences range from Orange Juice to CSS — meld punk and funk into one hell of a performance you'll be glad you didn't miss. Doors at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $10. — Hilary Crowe

Los Enanitos Verdes at the State Theatre

Los Enanitos Verdes are anything but small. The name translates to "Little Green Men," but during the late 1980s the band from Mendoza, Argentina had a sting of rock-pop ballad hits ("Tus Viejas Cartas," "Cada vez que digo adios," "Lamento Boliviano," and "La Muralla Verde") and have sold out stadiums in Viña del Mar (50,000 spectators) and Mendoza (35,000) in Argentina and Santiago, Chile (32,000). The Rock en Español band is celebrating their 30th anniversary next year, and their stop at the State Theatre is one of 28 confirmed dates, Enanitos' longest tour in the United States. Their songs contain plenty of catchy choruses that have kept their fans singing along and swaying side-to-side during their shows for the past three decades. Doors at 7 p.m., show at 9 p.m. Tickets $30 in advance, $35 day of. — Alfredo Flores

The Eagles of Death Metal AT 9:30 CLUB

With an inane name and ridiculously catchy tunes, the Eagles of Death Metal are the sharp pointed stick of rockdom. They've been banned by Axl Rose and ripped the shirts off Jack Black and Dave Grohl, so it's clear they've shared bills their fair share of the best. Leave the cardigan at home and come see what every other band these days seems to be sorely lacking: enthusiasm. The Duke Spirit open. Tickets are $15. $10 p.m. — Hunter Gorinson

WED., NOV. 19

Shelby Lynne at the Birchmere

Local (Quantico) country and western star Shelby Lynne returns to the area for a show at the Birchmere. Few 40-year-olds look — and sound — so good. Show is at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25. — Robert Fulton

THUR., NOV. 20

The Eagles at Verizon Center

Last year saw the release of "Long Road Out of Eden," The Eagles' first album in 28 years following their controversial breakup during "The Long Run" era. Glenn Frey, Don Henley, Joe Walsh, and Timothy B. Schmidt will be spreading their wings yet again and descending on the District. Fans of the guys from LA will expect the classics like "Hotel California," "One of these Nights," and "Heartache Tonight," but can also likely expect their newest hit, "Busy Being Fabulous" to make an appearance. You never know if this might be the last chance to see the four together, but at the rate tickets are going, who would stop touring? Show is at 7:30 p.m., tickets are $53-$188. — Jason Walsh

THUR., NOV. 20

Luke Brindley Band at the Barns at Wolf Trap

Luke Brindley is one of the best singer/songwriters in the greater D.C. area. His recent EP, "Five Songs," has been well received, and this live band features brother Daniel and one of the area's top musicians, Todd Wright. Ari Hest also performs. Perfect evening before the hectic holiday season takes off. Just $16. — Robert Fulton

WED., NOV. 26

Method Man and Redman "Still High Tour" at the 9:30 Club

One of Hip Hop's most entertaining duos, always known for their high-energy live performances, is back at it again, promoting their latest CD, "Blackout 2" (out in December). In addition to the album, rappers Method Man and Redman are also working on the "High How" movie sequel. Method (taking his name from a 1979 martial arts film as well as
