

Pagan Humor

(Done in a Loki) By Don Meinshausen

What do you call a Pagan Yarmulke?

Answer: A Blessed Beanie.

After hearing too many "A priest, a rabbi and a minister walk into a bar" jokes; a wizard, a witch and a shaman walk into a bar where a magician is the bartender. He says: "Sit down I'll make you into anything you want being that this is a magickal bar." The wizard says "Make me a sloe gin fizz". The magician turns him into a sloe gin fizz. The witch then says: "He was always too fast for me anyway". The shaman says "Well, Maybe this will make him into a medium".

Did you hear about the follower of Aleister Crowley who played 3 card Monte with a tarot deck? He turned himself in to the cops. He thought that this was a way to get the third degree. He wasn't playing with a full deck anyway.

Jews, Christians and Moslems see time as linear. We pagans see time as a circle or as a spiral. A spring is spiral in design and so is our Spring Maypole dance. Therefore we are cycle-logical while they fall for the same old line. The word Yule comes from the old word for wheel. Perhaps this means that the Yule log was a spoke and I am a spokesperson for explaining this. This roundabout method is called circular reasoning. It is a renewal of interest or revolving fund. Most pagans therefore believe in re-incarnation. I don't, but I did in a previous life.

Paganism is the old time religion since we are tens of thousands of years old, compared to the new kids of Abrahamic descent. We also base our worship on the seasons. If you're older you're also more seasoned. And more spicy. Some ask their Gods for favors. We ask the Gods for more flavors. Come by some time for a taste test. We got it from sour-casm, to saltiness to, the honeyed sweetness of the Goddess. If you can't stop by now try later. Bitter late than never.

A Hindu scientist once described belief as the ability to hear music and that the belief is the choice of musical genre. It is incredible that many will only one taste in music and even some Moslems ban music. According to Mark Twain many Christians think that Heaven is everybody playing harps and only one person out of a 100,000 here knows how to play. Does that sound like heaven? The worst music I have ever heard is a Protestant hymn. This might be why some Moslems want to ban music. Although we are the Classic in genre, we like new tunes coming in and from all cultures as well. Our theology is sound! It is designed to a muse!

We like our Gods and Goddesses so much that we look for them new friends, mates and others to work with. Therefore they are in good company and are corporate among us. Why should one God have to do all the work and get crucified for it? Maybe that's why he walked off the job.

Pagans wonder why many of our ancient practitioners and their work were burned at the stake. Well, there's no fuel like an old fuel. XXX
