The Jack of All Trade

Twenty-five years old Sagittarian, Kerland Brown, a.k.a. Docta Peppa, The Jack Of All Trade, who hails from Rose Hill district in St. Mary, Jamaica, noted that the message he has must become an individual promise and a token to his audience. With the development of his debut album, he feels that dedication to the music is instrumental for good, clean and conscious vibes as it speaks its own "language of life".

"My mood coincides with the changes of life, and as an entertainer, by performance; it must be an art and a science. The methodology of delivering my performance must be an orchestrated one, not void, but filled with audience expectation that will eventually bring satisfaction. My spiritual connection with my music is the origin of the depths of my understanding, it is simple, effective and as close to perfection as possible. As a doctor of my music, my intention is to perform a thorough job within the international music market towards global recognition."

Docta Peppa has not had as many performances as he would like but whenever he had the opportunity, the Docta has never disappointed his audience. The Docta has been on a mission to get his name and talent exposed to the world. In 2003 he has performed at several hot spots in and around Toronto, Club Paradise, Planet Africa, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Culture Fest, just to name a few. He has shared the stage with the likes of Brigadier Jerry, The Prophet Capleton, Lukey D, Pinchers, and many more. "I'm not in the music business to compete, I am here to establish my own identity, be original and do things that no one else has ever done", says a very focused and determined Docta Peppa while reflecting on the politics of music that has completely changed the game.

His current CD features six songs including a the title track "Mamma, One of these days" along with the instrumentals of all featured songs. Docta Peppa is also putting the finishing touches on his debut album "THE LOUDER THE BETTER" which will feature guest appearances from Leroy Sibbles, Tony Curtis, King Kong, Lukey D, and Roundhead. The LP is schedule for release early summer, of 2004. He is confident that this album will no doubt put his name in the forefront of his fans and the entertainment industry.
