Family goals describe the skills you use to supervise your family, your children, and your subordinates. These goals also can describe your home, your relationship to your family, and your community.

ANALYSIS OF FAMILY

Typically, you are a vagrant at heart, drifting from place to place like a tumbleweed. It can be difficult for you to settle down and put down roots. When you do, you prefer to have more than one domicile. Although you may communicate frequently with your parents, your childhood ties are not enduring and likely do not serve as a foundation for worldly achievement.
