Diary Entry #17843

I realise that I am getting old, so I have decided to take a trip back to Athenry. I left Waltham without telling my family, who are probably quite concerned by now. I have not been overseas since I originally came to Massachusetts. I know that this journey is quite dangerous, and relatively idiotic, but I am still determined to visit home once more before I pass. I should send a postcard back home to let them know I am safe once I arrive.
