

Círdan

Círdan the Shipwright is a Telerin Elf, a great mariner and shipwright, lord of the Falas during much of the First Age. He was the bearer of the Great Ring Narya, which he in turn gave to Gandalf.

Círdan had grey, or silver, hair in the Third Age of Middle-earth, like his overlord and kinsman Thringol.

He is one of the oldest Elves in Middle-earth at the time when 'Lord of the Rings' is set as he is also mentioned as being one of the elves to awake at Cuiviénen.

Older Círdan - possibly the oldest elf in middle-earth in the third and fourth ages. One of the only elves known to have a beard.
