

Maglor

Maglor, the 2nd son of Feanor, was the greatest poet and bard of the Noldor and was said to have inherited more of his mother's gentler temperament.

As with the other Sons of Feanor, Maglor was bound by the Oath of Feanor.

Eventually he reclaims the final Silmaril but is unable to bear the suffering, and casts it into the sea.

Thereafter he wandered along the shores of the world, singing laments over the loss of the jewel, until he faded from memory.

