

In the article the Bulgarian population's living and working capacities are investigated using the data from the census toward 4.12.1992. Basic concepts, worldwide in the theory and practice, are used as well as such ones utilized in Bulgaria. The three methods of making tables for living and working capacities are described. Such tables are made after Sullivan's method. The working capacity of population and the losses on account of different degrees of disability are calculated on the basis of these tables. The results obtained are analyzed in a crosschecked aspect.
