

Personality Test

You walk into a forest along a mud path. In the darkness, you see an animal among the bushes, what is that animal you see? It can be any animal. Lion
(The first animal that you see is supposed to be your significant other.)

Then you continue walking until you hear a rustling sound, what animal can you see coming from behind the leaves? Tiger
(That second animal is supposed to signify yourself)

After walking for some time, you see a river with a bridge across. On a scale of one to ten, what is the speed of the river flowing? 8
(The speed of the river is supposed to signify your sex drive.)

After crossing the river, you come across a deserted house. You knock and enter the house, there is nobody inside. The first thing you see is a table, what shape is it? Square
(The shape of the table is supposed to represent how flexible you are. If the table is square or rectangle or something angular then it means that you are not flexible, but rounded tables are more flexible.)

How many chairs accompany the table? 4
(Apparently it's supposed to stand for how many close friends you have.)

On top of the table you see a chandelier. How many candles does it hold? 10

How many candles are lighted? Or how many candles do you light up? 8
(Apparently my sister said that the candles that lit up signify your generosity)

You walk into the kitchen and open the fridge. You see a jug of water. You put it on the table. What material is the jug made of? Plastic

How full is the jug of water? 1/2
(The material of the jug represents your heart in a relationship, how fragile it is. The water level of the jug signifies your commitment level in the relationship.)

You walk out of the house and see a sky full of stars. What are your first three thoughts/feelings? Bright, beautiful, dark
(It is supposed that the three things that you think about are the things that you think are the most important things to you at this present moment.)

You fall asleep and wake up on a deserted island. What is the first thing you say/exclaim? Hurray
(She said that that's the first thing you'd think about after the first time you have sex.)
