

>Charming material ..

My counselor says I'm, paranoid about his paranoia.

>Don't bum... channel your energy & frustration & make it work for you. For >instance, I can bring some dolls over to you... they're kind of featureless, >but they make great pin cushions...

Now, now, I am supposed to be trying to achieve a reconciliatory spirit... of course I am also supposed to be letting out my aggressions, and greivances My counselor tells me I'm thinking too much & not getting to know my feelings. I said "How do you know the difference?" She says feelings make me cry... & I thought it was thoughts that were making me cry, I would believe if she said feelings were making me eat. Because the thoughts are telling me to do the opposite.

>I think you're much stronger than you sometimes give yourself credit for; 'remember the quote from Nietzsche - or was it Conan The Barbarian - "What does >not kill me makes me stronger."

>> Oh, no I am beginning to believe that I am or have been weaker than I always gave my self credit for being.

Told that You had passed on the whereabouts of two college friends. He asked if I had called them. Told him I had not had time since only a couple of hours had passed, which had been spent getting ready for our date and being on the date. He saw something else in my reaction. So told him that J was "Dad" as college, but that the other had been a boyfriend of sorts. And it might feel a bit odd to say "Hi, I'm ...", you don't know me but your husband & I knew each other in college...I was ... then." If she & C have a normal marriage she'll know who I am just from my first name, A tough scene, C & I always knew we weren't right for each other at the time. but was fun. We frequently said that perhaps when it was time to go to a retirement home, he would have calmed down enough & I would have gotten wi enough for us to be compatible... has asked what C & I expect to do with our spouses once we were in the home...Keep the medicated was the answer, if they were still alive. Men die younger, and I married an older man so I probably wouldn't have to worry. was delighted to know I had my life after his demise planned. I did not mention the other friend you found was C, just an old boyfriend. understood the potential awkwardness of calling someone I used to date...then I had to explain that this guy and I, though we were a couple, only went on one date, and that was the last time I ever saw him..

A few moments later, our waiter brought me r Amaretto sour. I asked if he could imagine me drinking 5 of those in 3 hours. Having only seen me drink 2 in one evening once, he wondered what I am like with that much in me. I told him that I played pool, and made many sexual innuendos..he asked if I would like another drink. He did not ask any more questions, but the memory of that night though it answered many questions for me at the time, causes me to hesitate in calling L .. He was engaged to a different girl then, I think. I knew that the marriage would not work by the end of the evening, but he was stood up at the altar by her a few months later. He did not mention her but once the whole night.
