

Very different idea.....Why not to write story called Sympathy For The Devil???
/with the picture of Mr. Woods on front cover...../

this could be my English story number 2

Sympathy For The Devil, Part Two

Let me, please, introduce myself, I'm a man of ...

Some people remember always "old good times", it make them happy to talk hours and hours about what had happen ten years ago, that day when they moved from A to B and they happened to meet that man which was....and so on, they are able to repeat this same old story million times so that for the millionth and first time the story is so perfect that nobody believes it and everybody thinks that such a story isn't nothing more than a pure fantasy, everybody appreciate such imagination and story-telling talent of the author and nobody realizes that the story which is repeated for the first time is a hundred times more false than a story repeated for the millionth time. Isn't it interesting? Longer time has passed since something happened, better you remember it. Maybe it's against the laws of probability. Maybe the laws of probability are wrong. Maybe I'm wrong.

My story will happen tomorrow and I will tell you what it will be about.

All that happened next Sunday. As I woke up in the morning very early, about half past six, I left my apartment and made it directly to the center.

I agree that it isn't a good time to go anywhere, warm bed and sweet dreams make better sence during this period of day, but sometimes you can't sleep anymore and you need to go somewhere, some sixth sence makes you to get out to meet somebody or something or...

Or is the name, Swedish name by origin, in the 6th century AD the capital of Kingdom of what now is called Sweden was the city of Skaarjo, a few poor houses which surrounded a huge fortress and a man which guarded a gate of the fortress was given a name Or, originally written Aar, which originally comes from a Celtic word Aarme which means "the man who never dreamed".

Or is the name of man I met in the center of Prague.
