The Designer

The FUTURA font was created by JAUL RENNER (1878 - 1956) a German type designer somewhere between 1924 and 1926. It was based upon the design philosophy of geometrics shapes similar to those of the CONSTRUCTIVISM movement that was going on. This was during the end of what is considered the Modern era in typography.

Futura is a geometric Sans Serif font!

Even though it is almost 90 years old Futura continues to be popular. It was the first used for the photos left on the menu for the Apollo 11 anniversary in 1967. It was chosen by legendary director Stanley Kubrick who used it for every of his films such as 2001: A Space Odyssey and A Clockwork Orange. It really remains suitable to be used by modern companies and individuals in the field of design, publishing, branding, graphic design and advertising. Here is our collection of some of the most beautiful examples of Futura in our collection. We hope you will like the popularity of the font guarantees that it will continue to be used by designers for years to come.
