

Inverse Reception - a system of synastry

Alison Maciver

For those who know the concept of Mutual Reception (MR), this system works within one chart.

Inverse Reception (IR) is the same principle working between two charts. By using this system insight can be gained as to why two people need to have any association at all. The Inverse Reception of Pluto in Leo is the Sun in Scorpio.

Once I started to look at this system I found that nearly all my clients had planets which connected with at least one of mine by IR. One day someone arrived and this connection was absent. He had a hangover and the value of that session was questionable.

In synastry Moon in Aries and Mars in Cancer would be in square. How would this inverse reception manifest?

When a person has Moon in Aries and Mars in Cancer this is called "Mutual Reception". Mutual Reception gives added positive strength and dignity as well as special talent or ability to both planets. They see eye to eye and support each other's function.

I have an Aries Moon and her Moon is in my 1st house, Would you go for a connection there too?

Now, this adds a new dimension. What if her Natal Mars is in your 4th House?

Examples of Inverse Reception

Moon in Leo - Sun in Cancer

Mars in Sagittarius - Jupiter in Aries/Scorpio

Saturn in Leo - Sun in Capricorn

Here is another system of synastry.

Look at the ruler of each house and the aspects between the planets in one chart and the ruler of the same house in the other chart.

In one case a man who is important in one woman's life ... the ruler of her 7th House is Mars/Sagittarius/3rd and the ruler of his 7th House is Jupiter/Sagittarius/7th. These two are within a few degrees of one another. This brings them both back to ethical and philosophic issues to do with Mars issues. When they have succumbed to verbal fighting they have been able to overcome this because the door has stayed open. They both have Moon in Aries, he has Mars in Cancer. She is the one who keeps pushing the buttons when there are issues which are festering. His ruler of his 10th house is in opposition to the ruler of her 10th House and this is where they have major issues. Would they be wise to set up business and work together?
