

Discover why Business First ranked us #1!
Get the training your users need from
Columbus State Community College

Dear IT Professional:

Recently Columbus State was named the number one computer training center by Business First, 2003 "Greater Columbus Computer Training Centers—Consumer" list. I've included a special copy of the list from Business First so you can see how well Columbus State rates among its competitors.

Your IT organization keeps busy with infrastructure and desktop maintenance—installing, upgrading, troubleshooting, and testing the hardware and software that keeps your business running. Supporting users just adds to the load on your technicians.

What if your users could support themselves? Updating their skills in Microsoft Office and other productivity applications can help them do just that. Columbus State is the #1 source in Central Ohio for the training that your users need to refresh their skills.

We invite you to let your HR or training manager know that Columbus State provides the computer training that your organization needs. David Roberts, chief executive at The Corporate IT Forum, says, "It should be the HR function that recognizes the problem, but the board may need extra encouragement from the IT director." (Computer Weekly, 5/27/2003)

We provide customizable computer training at your site or at one of our computer labs. Call us today at 614.287.5000 and ask to speak with a Training and Performance Consultant about our contract training and consulting services.

Sincerely yours,

Aaron Minnick
Program Consultant

P.S. Check out the enclosed flyer for a special offer on our one-day Professional Development Seminars. Hurry—this offer expires on September 2!