TIPS: High Cost of Not Having an Estate Plan

If you are still pondering whether or not you need an estate plan (...making an Effective Will and not simply a Simple Will), think again, about the consequences and bad events should happen to one:

1. The Court will take over the control of your estate assets...
2. The Court will distribute your estate according to the Intestate Succession Act.
3. Your beneficiaries might not receive your estate (wealth) according to your wishes and provisions made by you.
4. The Court may appoint a total stranger (e.g. creditor) to administer your estate.
5. You will not have any tax saving strategies.
6. What if both spouses die in an accident and who will look after your young children (below 21 years). You appoint no legal guardian.
7. Would you entrust your children's well being to someone who is a total stranger or someone with different core-values from you.
8. It will cost you more for doing nothing... and in most cases; your family will be in total emotional stress and financial stress to handle the unsettled estate.
9. What if your have nominees (CPF/Insurance/House) that does not survive you or die together in an unexpected accident. Who is supposed to benefits from your family assets?
10. Accidents and illness happen everyday... to you want your preserved and growing wealth caught up in such a situation of heirs fighting over your inheritance, disputes over the claims...
11. The Court may be required an administration bond and 2 sureties, if the deceased's estate value was $250,000 or more.
12. Many more...

I certainly hope to offer you (all) our professional services and you can benefit from our FREE consultation session.
