

AURA can move to the right or left of the body in varying degrees, but seems to favour left. Sometimes three silvery like chords or threads seem to be attached to the body and connecting the displaced aura.

An Auric shift.

There is a condition that one can see when looking "psychically at the Auria, and I term it as an auric shift or a displaced aura. Whether or not the aura actually slips to one side I really don't know, but it appears to and it can be put back over the body in a process described in the books. People feel much better when this is done, and it can be right away from the body altogether in some cases..

When Polarity of the body is reversed Coil or spring turns anti-clockwise. This condition makes people feel very disorientated and irritable.

The Coil of Life.

There is a spiralling coil that twists around the human body and can only be seen by an extra sense, for the sake of health this coil must rotate in a clockwise movement, when this happens it indicates that the etheric body is absorbing the "life force" correctly out of the atmosphere therefore all the body cells will be correctly charged..
