

ELECTRO-STATIC AND MAGNETIC HEALING AIDS: including CARBON RODS

Morris A Bradley 1978.

Ever since Dr Mesmer, the Father of Hypnotism, or Mesmerism, as it used to be once called, used Magnets and all sorts of Magnetic equipment as healing aids, there has been much controversy as to their effectiveness in curing certain ills.

It is fairly widely accepted that strong magnetic fields can alter the circulation of the blood, yet science to date does not know why. Cramp in the muscles responds to the use of a magnet, and I can personally vouch for this, as an old sufferer myself. Migraine headaches can also be eased by the correct use of a magnet.

About a year ago I thought I would conduct a series of experiments myself with magnets and see if I could gain any answers by appraising it with the psychic eye, as I felt that there must be some strong or unusual current flows or frequency vibrations that enter into the "subtle body" of Man, for we know that we are a "physical body and a Spiritual body" and that the "spirit" part of us is electrical and has no limits, that is why it is infinite and eternal. When there is a lack of neuron flow in the blood, the circulation can slow down at least 25 percent and this causes a numbness, and it is a strong magnetic field that affects the etheric or spirit body and this in return is reflected in the physical body.

After preliminary experiments on my own, I invited two of my other colleagues who are both very good Clairvoyants and then started a series of experiments on my own body, while my two colleagues sat in meditation watching the unusual things that took place in my auric field, and how it influenced and altered the function of my etheric shield.

One conclusion that I came to very quickly was that experimentation with magnets or magnetic fields, or the indiscriminate use of magnets can be very dangerous and do untold harm to the physical body, especially to those people who have respiratory problems, heart or vein troubles, stomach or intestinal troubles, or nervous disorders. By indiscriminate use, I mean on occasions when some Professor or Scientist makes some remark about magnets being good for this or that, and the News Media take a few lines from his report and make headlines of it. Next we hear that there has been a rush on Magnets, and there is not one to be purchased anywhere for the do-it-yourselfers are home trying to cure themselves.

This I feel to be irresponsible, for people are suddenly introducing into their own body's electrical field, a strong magnet that could alter the current flow to vital organs, thereby causing them to malfunction.

Of the things I did learn was, that if a Magnet was held in the left hand it introduced "southern polar magnetic current" into the heart area and acts like a pacemaker but it does not pay to hold it any longer than 20 minutes at a time. For people who have bad polarity problems with the heart, and millions do, then this treatment is very beneficial and can be used several times daily. I tried it on some very chronic cases of heart conditions, and they all responded well. Where there was a degenerative heart disease it seemed to halt it, even bring some regression.

As we watched the magnetic current flow through the use of the psychic eye it seems to restore the positive motion, or should I say, returns the life force to the cells positively which in turn allows the damaged cell tissue to regenerate. Taking a group of psychic sensitives and giving them a few instructions, it was not long before they could all look at any magnet and tell me which was the South pole, and which was the North. Some used Pendulums to find which pole was which while others put the heads under a jet black clothes in an unlighted room, and claimed they could see a different aura colour emanating from each pole. They all agreed that the South pole point was easiest to see, for in pitch darkness it seemed to glow blood red.

There were some others who just closed their eyes and put the finger tips over the magnet points and found the correct poles.

Another thing that was revealed was that if one continually held a magnet in the right hand it reversed the polarity of the heart and made it move in an anti— clockwise motion, at least the electrical flow became negative, which was bad. Most of our workers on the project could see or sense the human auric field and see the etheric body and it was also discovered that by continued use of a magnet in the right hand there was an auric displacement to the left of the body. By this I mean that the whole auric field seems to move away from the body to the left and if it gets too bad it seems to move right away from the body altogether though it still appears to be attached by three slim silverlike umbilical type cords; one is joined to the base of the spine; one to the solar plexus area; and one to the top of the head area.

This was an unusual condition and people felt real bad when this happened to them. It seems to be the same effect that I wrote about in earlier books, where I struck cases when doing healing, where the person seemed to have jumped right out of the body (etheric) and I found that some who had this condition had been involved in severe accidents, fell on their heads, had a nervous breakdown and had been given shock treatment, or had suffered bombing during some war and were still in a state of shock. People with this condition seem to be prone to terrible diseases, and chronic illnesses. Sometimes anesthetic used during a long and serious operation can bring this condition about also.

The next step was to test a thick pure Carbon rod by holding it in the right hand then the left hand. The Carbon rod seems to attract a type of "neuron energy" to the body's electrical field and adds beneficial energy to the nervous system and to those who suffer from these problems, such as neurasthenia, hysteria, alcoholism, drug addiction, epilepsy, this Carbon induced energy has a stimulating and calming effect; however if it is used by itself in the right hand it tends to split the "spiritual body" right down the middle giving a very strange feeling where only one side of the body seems to be energised.

Next I found that if you held the magnet in the left hand, and the Carbon rod in the right hand, the whole body seemed to benefit. The heart became fully charged and the nerves fully restored. Where it was ideal was when you wake up from a bad sleep and you feel that you have been "dragged through a gorse bush backwards" and there is this awful feeling of disorientation. Lay down on your bed, the couch or the floor if you want to, magnet in the left hand, Carbon rod in the right hand, then slowly try to spin your own "coil of life" around as was explained in the earlier books. Do this for 15 minutes and you won't know yourself, it is also good for migraines and hangovers.

Now then if you can see your own aura has moved to the left or there is a "sensitive" handy that can have a look for you and can verify it, then you can reverse the process, but remember it only works when the aura is out to the left of the body, not the RIGHT. Take your Carbon rod and place it in the left hand and put the magnet in the right hand and just sit and wait for the aura to move back into its natural position.

When using the Carbon rod you soon know when you have got enough energy into your body, for your right hand holding the rod starts to throb. Now if you don't stop then you will find that some deep red awful looking marks will appear in the palm of your hand; they almost look like burns.

It was also discovered that if a person received a bad cut or a bruise, the pain could be immediately eased by placing the North pole end of a bar magnet over the affected area. In the cases of cuts or wounds, even water blisters or blood blisters, the healing process was speeded up considerably. Even with boils or other suppurating sores, varicose ulcers etc, all responded to the application of magnetic treatment. It is important to remember that when you hold a magnet in your right hand to give treatment to yourself or some other person, it is essential to have a horseshoe magnet in your left hand as well, for this retains the normal polarity of the heart. When you are giving magnetic treatment just take the magnet in the right hand and move it in a circular motion, always going clockwise over the stricken area.

Rheumatism, and arthritis, even gout, responds to the magnetic treatment and in this case you lay the person down on a bed or couch, and run the magnets down towards the feet from the head area in a type of circular stroking action. I took a small length of timber about 12 inches long and two inches wide and half an inch thick, then I drilled half a dozen holes through it which were 3/8th of an inch in diameter, and in these holes I inserted small lengths of bar magnets with the North pole ends all facing out the same way and made the South pole ends flush with the piece of timber, and then glued some aluminium foil over the ends so that when I held the wood in my hand the North pole ends faced outwards towards the patient, and the Southern ends which were flush and foil covered fitted into the palm of my hand. This is what we call a "magnetic wiper" and it was used for cleansing a body aura of harmful radiations and a whole host of other complaints. People who had just had major surgery and were still recuperating found a tremendous uplift with this treatment.

Others who had legs or arms in plaster or severe sprains, all found that there was rapid improvement in their condition. If a person has a broken limb you can wind a long length of soft copper wire around the limb, on the outside of the plaster case, giving it the coil effect, and this will speed up the knitting of the bone. The next step is to make a coil around the limb and then join the two ends of the coil with a dry battery cell that has low voltage but high current and this makes the healing process faster again.

All cell growth seems to respond more to an electro—magnetic field around it for if you take two pots of earth from the same plot and place some seeds from the same packet, then separate the two pots but put a magnet under one of them and await the results, the one with the magnet grows twice as fast.

Or, you can make a long coil out of soft copper wire and place it around the pot, but don't let the ends of it meet, here again there will be faster growth. If you have a Pyramid and you place your seedlings in it for three or four hours each day, this also quickens the growth process, now if your Pyramid happens to be made of glass or perspex you can leave the seedlings in there all the time and watch the rapid growth of them.

There is obviously a lot that science has not yet discovered about the electromagnet effect of cell growth and for the moment it seems that this research is left in the hands of enthusiastic amateurs like myself, who have only the psychic eye with which to perceive these variances of “current flow” or the vital life force where magnetic power is introduced to stimulate and heal cell tissue.

The other experiment we conducted was the making of an electro-static belt. This is made by taking a piece of spring steel or a piece of soft flat iron that is used in industrial packaging. One can find this soft steel band on building sites etc, where it has been bound around packing cases of crates to hold them together. It is usually just over 3/4 of an inch wide and about one sixteenth of an inch thick. Cut off a strip long enough to encircle the waist with a six inch overlap, next get some soft core copper wire, the finer the better, make sure that it is insulated, then start one end of the iron band and start winding the wire around and around making a coil so that it looks like you are going to make an electro magnet. The windings must not overlap but remain close together with no joins. To avoid having to join the wire, cut off a sufficient length to start off with. Insulate the end of the wire so that it does not touch the iron band which is the “centre core”.

What is happening here is that the “universal lines of magnetic force” start to flow through the coiled wire, and as we have a bit of soft carbon steel band running through the centre of this coil, that in turn induces an electro—static magnet field around this belt, or simply one has an electro-magnet that is plugged into the Universe for energy and not the power mains. When tested with a pendulum you will find that one end is North pole, and the other is South pole and when placed around ones waist (next to the skin if possible) the north Polar end always goes to the right hand side of the body. Some of this flat iron band that one gets is often painted with a rust preventative coating and this can effect the proper working of the belt. One of our workers made such a belt from an iron band that had this coating and the result was that it was South pole at both ends, or in other words, we had a whole negative belt. Another used different material that gave positive poles at both ends and yet still another used stainless steel as the iron centre core and this really mucked the whole thing up altogether.

On investigation of these “freak” belts we concluded that the stainless steel seems to have non—magnetic properties and that the other two belts that were made from the painted steel obviously had some metallic pigment in the paint film that contributed to the total negative effect or the total positive effect, so the answer is to choose your material wisely.

Once the belt is made correctly and fitted in correct polar alignment with the human body, the result is that the human aura seems to grow, and get bigger. I found that to place the belt on when I was feeling well, I could only suffer .c. fog about half an hour then I had to remove it for I felt as if I was exploding from within, and became excessively hot, however if my health fell below par with a cold or influenza, I could leave it on all day and feel the benefit of it when a person is sick and the physical aura is down this belt helps to “recharge” the auric field giving more vitality to the body. I feel it introduces certain frequencies into the body that are therapeutic and it seems that the thinner gauge the wire is the better for it seems to produce a “long wave frequency” which can be disseminated into a variety of harmonics, and is better than the thicker gauge wire which tends to attract ultra high frequency wavelengths that don't seem to be so beneficial to cell growth.

Also it was found that healers who did not have very good psychic vision could see more in the auric field of a patient they were treating, once the patient had worn the belt for five or six minutes, and elementals of thought forms that get attached to people do not like the introduction of this universal current either for they are easier to detect and easier to detach from the patient. People who suffer from mental disorders seem to respond to this belt for in some ways it is a type of “shock treatment” that is being administered, but a very gentle one, and while they are being treated the Clairvoyant can see the alteration of the neuron flow, and the restoration of the etheric body.

Once more again if you plant seeds out in boxes and lay one of these belts between them the growth rate is much faster and the seedlings seem to be freer from diseases and grub attacks etc. Our own experiments are still being conducted and we are working with Pyramids, Cones and Hexagon synthesizers and at a later date when we have accrued more knowledge of their workings perhaps some articles on the subject will be written. However in the meantime, remember MAGNETS used improperly can be DANGEROUS, and may bring about some illness or disease that one is trying to avoid, so take care in all your endeavours if you intend to use this system of treatment.

Any person interested in making a magnetic wiper or an electro—static belt may get some ideas from a rather rough sketch I have drawn and attached to this article. Also remember I don't claim that the north polar magnetism will heal, only that it helps to restore the negatively charged cells to a state of positive polarity (or harmony) and allows the body to regenerate the tissue under the correct conditions
