

The Human Aura: To see or not to see.

Morris Bradley

The more one travels around visiting different healing groups, the more one becomes painfully aware of the restrictions and limitations that are placed on the active members by the controlling (worldly) hierarchy. For example, one group we know of in particular has several members who are gifted in being able to see the human aura, and yet they are forbidden by the local powers that be to mention or discuss this while attending their healing service. For goodness sake, why, is that we ask, for all humans, plants and animals have auras and a wonderful sight they are to behold to those who see them. What harm is there in telling a patient that they have a beautiful aura, that their aura colouring may indicate a certain problem that needs rectifying, or that it is possible to cleanse the aura, expand it and re-polarise it? This would certainly create some interest among the patients and promote investigative discussion about the "subtle bodies of Man" and how they exist and function. The problem seems to be that those who are in charge often do not have this God-given gift of aura sensing and seem to harbour some resentment and envy towards those who do. Consequently, it ill behoves those who do not see to belittle those who do. When feelings such as this are generated in a working group it affects the rapport of the workers and lowers the level of vibrations which can nullify much of the spirit flow needed to fulfil the work.

Not all people will see such wonderments of the spirit, so the Bible says, but we should rejoice that some of our members do, for each has a gift according to their development and these gifts are to be used collectively for the good of the community and the manifesting of God's power. Here is the crunch, for to deny such things is to deny the action of the Holy Spirit, and to deny this places one in an unforgivable situation. If we can demonstrate the manifestations of God Jehovah before all Mankind to see, then this for many could be the beginning of understanding and enable them to take their first step along the way. We are here to demonstrate and advertise the existence of God Almighty and the continuance of the spirit in a life after death.

Our goal should be to make every post a winning post, and this cannot be accomplished if we deny, or cover up, the actions of normal spirit phenomena.

We personally find that seeing the human aura gives us a great advantage in being able to determine the basic causes of some people's ailments and mental condition, thereby enabling us to take the appropriate steps to re-balance that which is unbalanced. If we wish others around us to learn about these things, how can this be done when we are forbidden to mention it. This is just one of many paradoxes that exist within many of these groups. Often you will get these people who won't eat meat, or stick to eating raw foods only or on a special diet to promote health, and yet will smoke worse than a chimney brick yard, or gulp down quarts of wine at one sitting. How one equates these actions in their mind is anybody's guess. So, we say be true to thine own self. If you can see auras, then talk about it and spread the word.
