

Types of Doji Candlestick Pattern

Common
Doji

Long-Legged
Doji

Dragonfly
Doji

Gravestone
Doji

Let us discuss them:-

1. Neutral Doji

This is the most common type of Doji candlestick pattern.

When buying and selling are almost the same, this pattern occurs.

The future direction of the trend is uncertain, as indicated by this Doji pattern.

2. Long-Legged Doji

As the name suggests, this is a long-legged candlestick pattern.

When the supply and demand factors are at equilibrium, then this pattern occurs. The trend's future direction is regulated by the prior trend and Doji pattern.

3. Gravestone Doji

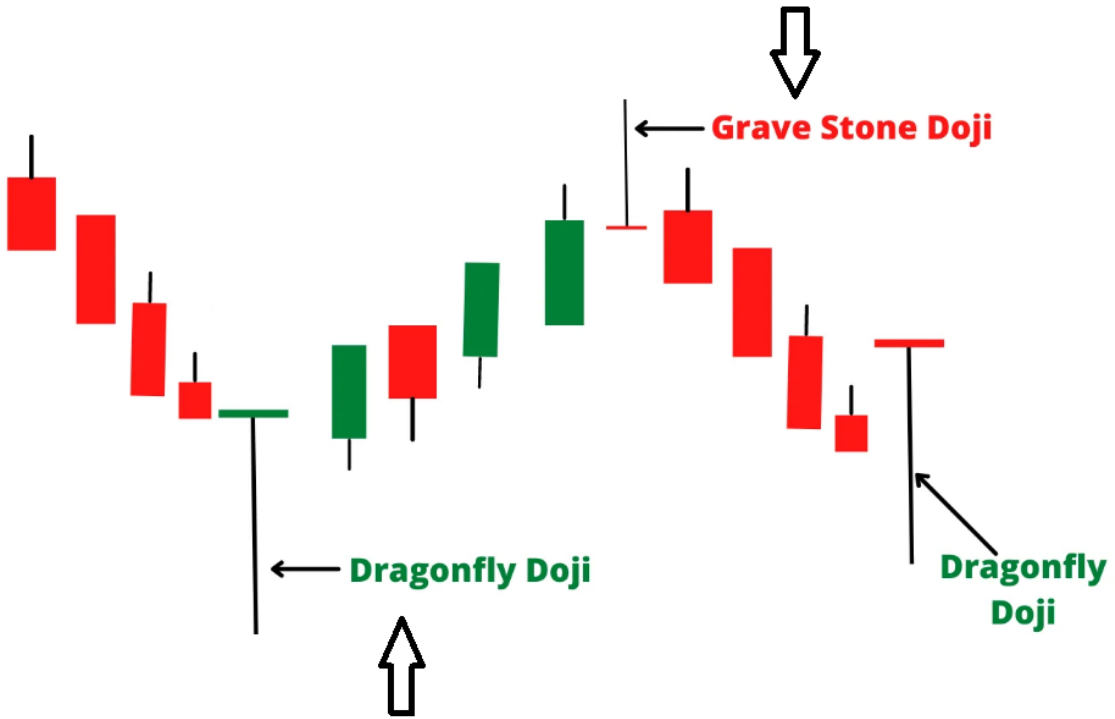

This pattern is found at the end of the uptrend when supply and demand factors are equal.

At the day's low, the candlestick opens and closes. The prior trend and Doji pattern regulate the future direction of the trend.

4. Dragonfly Doji

This pattern appears at the end of the downtrend when the supply and demand factors are at equilibrium.

Buy Put : When Grave Stone Doji apper in Uptrend

Buy Call :- when dragonfly doji appear in downtrend