

"Untitled"

by

Brian MacLean

Rough Draft
March 6th 2003
Personal Project

INT. KITCHEN

Very dim to no light, we can hear the ambient sounds of the kitchen as well as bugs and rats scuffling and eating. Suddenly the owner of the apartment enters the kitchen and flicks on the light, random bugs and creatures scatter throughout the kitchen and run out of sight. The owner begins sniffing around, he sniffs his breath, armpits, removes his sock and smells it and in the process of smelling his foot he falls to the ground. Laying on his back he notices a hole in the wall with bugs and shadows of critters shuffling about.

The owner gets up as if he has an idea, brushes himself off and exits the kitchen

INT. WALL

We see cockroaches and other bugs scuttling around and eating. A group of rats are feasting on a hunk of cheese.

INT. KITCHEN

The owner re-enters the kitchen with a huge vacuum like contraption. After adding some last minute duct tape and other minor adjustments he sticks the end of the nozzle into the hole in the wall, turns it on and switches the settings to "Rats" [We also see that cockroaches and alligators are amongst the settings]

INT. WALL

The cockroaches, bugs and rats stop instantly whatever they are doing, appearing to be hypnotized they begin to march towards the hole in the wall, each being sucked up one by one into the hose.

INT. KITCHEN

The owner is operating the vacuum contraption and eating a banana. All the rats and bugs are being sucked into the hose and into the containment part of the contraption. The owner takes the bag of squirming vermin out of the vacuum and exits the apartment.

EXT. PET SHOP

The owner enters the "Pet Shop" with the huge bag of squirming vermin... Sometime later he exits, counting a handful of cash and leaves in a car. Sometime after that a kid exits with a cage full of rats eating cheese.

THE END.