

The time comes when the world shall know that you're not banished in your own shadows;
 Your heart shall burst in torrents
 Out of the clasp of the ice;
 And your North wind turn its face
 Against the haunts of the flitting phantoms.
 There sounds the magician's drum,
 And the sun waits with laughter in his glance,
 To see your grey turn into green.
