

Communication

Communication is the most important part of any computer system to function it correctly. Similarly if we take our family and compare this model with any computer, it need very reliable set of communication though it is not written or coded in any fixed format, but family also need very effective communications between its constituents.

If it is effective communication between two people, it ought to be two ways i.e. listen and then say. If it one way or any thing less then two ways or only orders is the way of communication, then it is not an effective communication. Some time as an adult with more experience we tend to ignore the two way communication process and its importance because of lack of time and patient. It is my Ernest desire and deep feeling, as an adult and experience person in communication, we should know better the importance of listening and patient when having communication with youth that, if we will not behave the way we expect them to behave how and where they will learn. Children learn more from our behavior then what we try to teach them.

The main theme of this article is that pay good intention attention to every body's view, be a good listener and then only you can be a good communicator, and add what had been missing from consideration. Without listening it is only your view verses my view nothing more, this can be anything but communication

Umesh Rashmi Rohatgi
24161 Nilan Drive Novi MI 48375-3754 USA Ph:248-471-5786 Email:"ruenterprise@aol.com"