

It took one cosmic blunder
To split my life asunder
How could I know, how didn't I know
What do I do, this cup fulleth of woe.

For love I yearned, emptiness I found
I fail to run, our lives eerily bound
If I die, in my disgrace
With worms crawling all over my face

The price of life, now I know
This storm, wish I could out blow
For my deeds, that bring them sorrow
My loved ones, I fear for tomorrow

Seconds, like fire burn on my mind
In God and me, solace I find
Should I get the chance to stand again
Promise I, never risk life in vain

Courage I muster, the faith I build
Mother, Father; with your blessings my heart is filled
Forever my soul shall burn on, like a tower light
Guiding ships of life, till the end of night
