"Justine [in the stories] is Savannah's friend by way of Orlando Bloom. When she and Michelle undertook re-feminizing Savannah, it turned into a beautiful friendship," says Justine, and it's not hard to see how she can inspire a character that is a Pop Idol. Justine Gaudreau is a member of the all-girl singing group, G-Force (www.gforcegirls.com), and her rise to fame is, to quote Bonnie Tyler, "a powder keg giving off sparks". When asked to compare herself to her character, Justine adds, "well, I'm not a Pop Idol, but I plan to be". Enough said.

However, Justine is not British, although, I'm sure she will be the first to admit that she would love to be. There's something about the accent that just rolls off her tongue. Perhaps it's from watching Nicole and Ewan so many times. Justine admits that, like her character she also has a tendency to be "mildly snobby", but in a fun way, I can reassure her. Also, she claims to adore me, just as her character adores Savannah. Hm, we'll see. I can imagine Justine the Pop Idol's patience with Savannah growing thin in the coming stories.

To provide some degree of advocacy for the devil, Justine does say that her favourite story is the one in which she appears. That could be because she likes the battlebot, though. But, then again, who doesn't? Well, let's pry her away from herself for a moment, shall we wink wink? I ask Justine who her favourite character in the stories is, besides herself, because everyone would say themselves. She likes Jason. Perhaps because he is such a foil? One could only hope. While she predicts an eerie fate for everyone else in the stories, that they will turn out to be just like their characters ("I'm pretty sure Keithy and Baitzy are going to be smart, dashing guys, and I'm afraid the rest'll come true for the others"), she, reassuringly for me, has no beef with the way she is portrayed in the stories, citing, "I'm rich, famous, and gorgeous, what do you think?"

If any improvements could be made, it would be that Lynsi (Jon's girlfriend as of the time I have written this article) gets to make an appearance. This is added tongue in cheek, with a nudge, nudge, wink, wink... say no more. Spare that, Viggo Mortenson or Ewan MacGregor would not be too shabby.

The only regret? "That I'm not in more. I know, I'm selfish." ☺
