

25th April

“Freedom Day” is on 25th April. Every year, Italians remember the end of the nazi-fascism power. It was a terrible political period for Italy: Mussolini was Hitler’s allied.

The victory of Antifascist was organised by partisans. This period was called the Resistance, for reconquering freedom and democracy.

On 25th April 1945, partisans (helped by Americans and English allied) came in the main Italian towns and built the fundament for a new democracy.

Partisans were men, women, young boys, priests, workers, farmers, socialists, communists. All these people decided to found a democracy country which cosidered human rights, individual freedom, without any difference of raze, ideas, or religions.

Italian Constitution was born on democracy and freedom ideals.

People say our Constitution is the Resistance’s daughter.

In this day we remember that the freedom is not a free value but it must be defended every day.

Nowdays there are people who want to destroy freedom so we must defend it. Many people died for freedom and we won't forget their sacrifice.
