When David went to the airport, he was very excited. He was (1. also / some / so) a little nervous. He was going to (2. meet / meet / met) his brother (3. who / which / whose) he hadn't seen (4. since / for / then) forty years. In fact, until a year ago, he didn't even know that his brother was still alive. While he was standing and (5. is waiting / waiting / has been waiting) for him, many thoughts passed through David's head. What would his brother be like? He wondered how (6. would they / they would / they will) recognize each other. The only picture he (7. had / has / is having) today of his (8. brother / sister / mother) is from the time when he was seven. David wondered too what they would say to each other. He didn't know (9. how / when / what) he should behave. He looked at the arrival times again. He had (10. keep / keeping / kept) his eyes on them for half an hour. There it is. "The plane (11. has / was / is) arrived," he thought to himself. In a few moments he would (12. to be / be / being) together with a stranger, his brother. "I wonder (13. whether / how / that) my brother is (14. as / so / more) nervous as I am," David thought. "What would my brother do if he (15. is/ was / were) me?" David asked himself.
