

Johnny Hodges – The Composer

Compilation by Sven Eriksson

Last updated 8May08

25 July 1907 – 11 May 1970

Introduction

This catalogue was created to bring to light the creative powers of Johnny Hodges as a composer. In a condensed form you will find the melodies credited solely to him and tunes where he is credited as co-composer. The titles are as registered by ASCAP, the US Copyright Office, or the Smithsonian Institute, or as shown on record labels. They are in alphabetical order, with alternative title or spelling, if any.

This is not a discography, so only a few examples of recordings are presented. The catalogue numbers used by The New Desor leads you to details for those recordings where Duke Ellington is present in the session. To find out when a tune was created, it is better to look for first recording date instead of registration date – several years may have passed before registration is made. Abbreviations are used in order to save space, in the hope that the short forms are understood. Months are typed in lower-case for visual clarity.

For some tunes, no commercial recording has been found. Any comments or help from readers would be appreciated – please e-mail Sven Eriksson at s-e-a@ebrevet.nu.

"I really enjoyed that job. I liked every tune in the book. Nothing was superficial. It all had meaning and it all swung. And the confidence with which Rabbit plays! I wish I could play with the confidence that he does". John Coltrane comments his sessions with Johnny Hodges in 1954 in an interview with Don DeMichael for Downbeat Magazine. Quoted in Coltrane – the story of a sound by Ben Ratcliff.

Closing notes

Sources for the entries in this list have been official registers as mentioned in the introduction, but also the comprehensive information in the two-part The New Desor by Luciano Massagli & Giovanni M. Volonté as well as information supplied with the CD-boxes listed above. In them, or in your favourite discography, you can find particulars for the majority of recordings mentioned. Johnny Hodges' biography, written by Stanley Dance, is included in the LP set issued by Mosaic. The 122-page book that comes with the RCA 24 CD set contains detailed information about Johnny Hodges' contribution to Duke Ellington's orchestra.
