

THE MAGNETRON RITE

To perform this action you will need nine people and a room big enough to lay out a pattern similar to the one above only large enough to fit the people into it, one person on each outer circle and the one person in the center.

This is empty-handed magick. There are no implements necessary and no ceremony required. The person in the center is the Prime Operator and he does all the work of visualization and transmission. The eight people on the outer circles do nothing but focus energy into the Prime Operator.

To do this you must first decide the nature of the project and who is to be the Prime Operator. This is done by any form of random divination, such as drawing straws or picking lots from a hat.

Once that is done, each person takes his or her place on the pattern and begins to concentrate. The Prime Operator pulls in that energy and visualizes the work that is to be done, be it to create a thoughtform or transmit energy to accomplish whatever end the project is aimed at.

Once completed, the participants leave the pattern and party.
